Promising New Record from Danish Crossover Band

The Danish band Shepherd Moons who plays a crossover of rock and jazz, released their 4th album "Blues" in 2007. With the new album, the band takes a further step into blues and jazz with the new guitarist Michael Carlsen, who kick-starts the music with his strong guitar riffs and solos. The songs, that already incorporate advanced chords and scales, have now attained a very convincing jazz feeling without losing the identity of rock and blues. Gitte Lund delivers her best ever lead vocals and her full voice renders a powerful and mature tone to the new album. The band has grown considerably in expressiveness and strength compared to the three previous albums from 2004, 2005 and 2006, which were a bit "over produced". As a whole, this is a promising new course for the former "rock band". "Blues" starts with classical Rock'n'roll and the album moves between basic blues, boogie woogie and "dirty" swing jazz.

Shepherd Moons consists of songwriter Henrik W. Gade on vocal, bass and piano, Gitte Lund on lead vocal and Michael Carlsen on guitar. A tour in Denmark and Germany starts in February 2008.
